GAP PARTNERS WITH GOODWILL IN THE DONATE MOVEMENT

Gap Invites Customers to Donate Clothing to Help Support Job Training Programs and Get Rewarded with 30% off Summer Shopping

AUSTIN, TEXAS – Gap and Goodwill Industries of Central Texas have announced a partnership encouraging consumers to clean out their closets for a cause. From May 19-29, Gap stores in the United States and Canada will accept clothing donations in support of the Donate Movement, an effort powered by Goodwill to educate the public on the positive impacts donations can have on both people and the planet.

When consumers donate clothing to Gap stores during this time period, their donations will be given to Goodwill Industries of Central Texas and then sold in Goodwill's more than twenty-two stores. To thank customers for their generous donations, donors will receive 30-percent off their entire Gap purchase, including regularly priced and sale items, just in time for Memorial Day shopping.

Donations to Goodwill are sold in its stores to support the organization's mission of providing job training programs and employment placement services to the people who need them most.

"As a company, we invest in career exploration and job readiness for youth, and thousands of our employees volunteer to help young people prepare for the workforce. Giving our customers and employees opportunities to donate clothing in support of Goodwill's job training programs is a great fit with our community efforts," said Bobbi Silten, head of global responsibility and president of Gap Foundation.

Donating to Goodwill also has a positive impact on the planet. Goodwill helps communities extend the life of usable items in environmentally sound ways, and diverts clothing items from local landfills.

"Through the Donate Movement, Goodwill aims to increase conscious donations by raising consumer awareness of the power their donated goods can have in strengthening their communities," said Jerry Davis, President and CEO. "When you donate to Goodwill, you enable a person to receive vital skills training, succeed at work and climb the career ladder. These are people who want to work but need Goodwill's help to find and keep good jobs."
